THE REAL RULERS OF NEVADA

HAVING decided to look after their interests in Washington, the cattle barons of Nevada are beginning to show more assertiveness by dictating laws for the oppression of farmers and small stockmen who do not belong to their association. The cattle barons would like to see the entire state thrown open for their herds and from appearances, they would not hesitate to see every town in the land with grass-grown streets where their herds would find further feeding without the unpleasant restriction concerning payment for use of the same. In the language of the buckaroo, these politicians are beginning to feel their oats and to assert themselves without thought for the rights or feelings of others. They have started to run the sheepmen off the range and otherwise to disport themselves as becomes a baronial lord whose only thought is the one of personal profit. The beefgrowers whose bank accounts have grown obese during the war and by connivance with the bigger meat interests now under investigation at Washington, declare they must have exclusive rights to whatever grazing remains in the state and to gain that end they are straining a point to put the small cattleman out of business. Assembly bill No. 75, introduced by Mr. Unacke, if passed, would come dangerously close to penalizing the farmer and small stockman and thus eventually drive him to bankruptcy. If the measure did not succeed in accomplishing this aim it would deprive the farmer of the privilege of selling his meats in the nearest market and thus influence prices established by the magnates at the packing centers in Chicago, Omaha and Kansas City. The bill provides that it shall be "unlawful for any person peddling the meat of any bovine animals, who is not the keeper of any shop or meat market, to sell such meat without having in his possession then and there, and, upon request, exhibiting the hide of such animal containing the brand and other marks thereon."

The operation of such a statute would drive the small cattleman of this county out of the Tonopah, or Manhattan, or Round Mountain markets where they have been accustomed to dispose of their freshly killed beefs at prices far below the beef trust standard. The spectacle of a rancher selling a truck load of beef in the local market is not uncommon. The practice has been followed ever since Nevada was organized, as this is the quickest way of realizing on stock and at the same time saving the producer the enormous cost of railroad transportation to the nearest market which, in this case, would be San Francisco. It is another move for centralizing the meat business in the hands of a few while, at the same time, holding up the consumer for top prices. The statute would militate against the best growing industry in Nevada by placing the business at the mercy of trust buyers who would offer whatever they chose for stock on the hoof. It is another well known fact that on the tons of cheap meats offered for sale in Tonopah and adjacent camps there has not been a single case where the seller was suspected of rustling or taking liberties with the holdings of others. Every rancher visiting Tonopah is better known to the consumers than the vagrant look of the range who would seek to destroy a business that they cannot control and the passage of such an infamous act would be to stigmatize each and every one of these meat dealers as a thief. Tonopah and other mining camps similarly situated have been favored with lower prices for beef sold in quarters and sides than any of the more favorably situated cities. This is due to the presence of the small beefgrower whose success and prosperity is getting on the nerves of the big fellows who hold the rest of the world under their thumb and exact tribute in proportion to the tightness of their grip.

INCOMES AND INCOME TAX

THE presence of the income tax collector has no terrors for the newspaper publishers who have been smitten hip and thigh by the Wilson administration until they feel themselves lucky in being permitted to exist. These men are not indebted to the government for whatever share of prosperity they may enjoy for every effort of the Democratic party has been actuated by an apparent desire to drive the newspapers out of business. There has been nothing but a steady advance in overhead costs and a diminution of revenue through operation of nefarious measures instituted by a government that has gone stark crazy with the paternalistic bug. Every move of the powers at Washington has been conceived with the thought of striking at the newspaper with its fearless exposure of war rascalities and incompetence in administering the sacred trust of the people. When the railroads were taken over, the newspapers suffered the loss of extensive advertising patronage on the theory that, since there would be no competition among carriers there would be no necessity for using printers' ink. The telegraph, telephone and express companies were merged under federal control, competition was throttled and the local managers were ordered to withdraw their advertising. Every step has been one which robbed the publishers of their just deserts, while at the same time multiplying the costs of raw material by adding 50 per cent to the freighting charges on news print and machinery, increasing postage rates on second class matter and cutting out all special advertising editions or holiday numbers which business men and manufacturers crave as a means of attracting buyers to their wares.

Even parsimonious government contracts for supplies have been passed over to the newspapers with a special and earnest plea for free publication on the score of patriotism. Liberty bond issues would have been flat failures from the outset had it not been for the loyalty of the harried publishers in coming to the aid of the country and granting thousands of columns of free space. The newspapermen have been importuned to donate space for Armenian drives, war activities booms, food and clothing for suffering Belgians and a score of more or less laudable undertakings whose masterly management finds a patient goat in the publisher. The last straw comes with a circular from the treasury department urging these same editors to give freely of their space to advise taxpayers that the government needs ten billions in taxes payable on short notice. Not a whimper about paying for this space. Everybody else has to come through, but the Wilson administration is enacting the role of a bully in whipping publishers into line with the alternative of meeting reprisals where least expected.

ALL RED CROSS WORKERS, TAKE NOTICE

The National Red Cross has requested that service ribbons be secured and given to each and every worker of the Nye county chapter who has donated either in knitting, or sewing at home or in the workrooms, over 500 hours of their time and in order to secure these ribbons by February 22nd it will be necessary that each and every member phone or send their names in to Harry R. Grier, chairman, in order that their claims may be checked up and vouched for before the present executive committee retires. Every worker who feels she has earned a service badge should make application at once. advF15-22

HEALTH OF SERBIANS SURPRISINGLY GOOD

(Correspondence Associated Press) NISH, Serbia, Jan. 6.—The health of the population of Serbia is surprisingly good. There have been few cases of the dreaded typhus or even of influenza. In both the military and civil hospitals the work of Serbian doctors, whose number since the war began has been reduced by more than half is being supplemented by British, French and American physicians.

The American Red Cross has hospitals at Uekub and Monastir and will establish others in northern Serbia if required. Major Daniel J. McCarthy of Davenport, Iowa is in charge of the hospital at Uekub, and Dr. R. B. Keyes of Buffalo of the one at Monastir. There are Red Cross doctors and dentists at Nish, Belgrade and other points.

In the Monastir district there is a special Red Cross mission for the purpose of training Serbian peasants in American farming methods and encouraging them to use modern agricultural machinery.

At several places the American Red Cross is distributing food and clothing to an increasing number of persons daily. A shipment of food and medicines which recently arrived at Plume has been sent into northern Serbia, and soon the Red Cross will be caring for destitute persons in almost every section of the country. This work is being conducted from Saloniki where Major John P. Carey of Colorado Springs, Colo., acting commissioner of the Red Cross mission to Serbia, is in charge.

The commissioner to Serbia, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas W. Farnham of New Haven, Conn., expects to establish headquarters at Belgrade at an early date.

The weather is extremely cold and fuel is very scarce. The Austrians and Bulgarians deliberately wrecked entire buildings in order to make firewood of the flooring and window frames. There is scarcely any petrol in the country and ordinary kerosene

NEEDLEWORK GUILD FINISHES HER WORK

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Feb. 20.—Queen Mary's needlework guild, which has done such good work during the war, will be closed with the exception of the orthopedic branches. In making this announcement Lady Lawson says: "Her majesty desires me to take this opportunity of making known her high appreciation of the wonderful spirit in which her branches throughout the empire have responded to her appeal on behalf of the sick and wounded. The record of the work done is one of which the queen and guild may well be proud."

sewn is selling at $5.40 a yard. The country's coal mines cannot be worked because most of the miners are still in the army. Railroads and highways are in lamentable condition and present many obstacles to the task of getting relief supplies to the interior. The enemy forces in their retreat wantonly destroyed large sections of the railroads, and as a result certain regions must rely on automobile transport. Only the most powerful motor cars and trucks can get over the wreckage roads. The army has most of the country's motor cars and they will not be available for relief work or agricultural purposes for some time.

There is a lack of petrol in the country and it is difficult to get it. They succeed in helping nobody.
